

Code of Ethics for PROP Volunteers

I will freely and conscientiously adhere to ethical conduct in the areas of assistance that I provide.

I will respect the confidentiality of all clients, being sensitive to the need for personal dignity.

I will guard against becoming judgmental; I will deal with the needs of any and all who come.

I will take to my work an attitude of open-mindedness, a willingness to accept training, and an interest in quality performance.

I will resolve to carry out my responsibilities, to be dependable and regular in attendance.

Confidentiality Agreement

In the course of your volunteer experience at PROP, you may have the occasion to learn information concerning the people you are assisting. It is your responsibility, as a representative of PROP to protect any information you may learn or be given. It is important to protect not only names but to keep all details strictly confidential.

I understand that if I meet people or obtain information about people while working at PROP and then see them in another context, or if I have a shared acquaintance with someone at PROP, whether it is a volunteer or client, I understand that it is NOT appropriate to comment to them or to anyone else about their participation in the program.

I also understand that PROP respects the privacy and circumstances of all clients served here and I know that I am expected to do so as well.
